

Selected Works from the DTL3 Postcard Design Competition

Bencoolen Station

“Making My Way Downtown draws reference to the many buildings along Bencoolen Street that provide many different functions. Bencoolen MRT is conveniently located near 3 schools, countless food options and various hotels for both locals and foreigners. Thus, this postcard showcases the variety of options and things we can do at one single stop.”

- Denise Wang Wen Xin (School of the Arts, Singapore)

Bendemeer Station

“When the Bendemeer Downtown MRT Station is open, people of different races will go and take the MRT and travel together. Some people will help each other understand the map, while others go to work or go out.”

- Ngin Shao Qi
(Hong Wen School)

Macpherson Station

“With MacPherson Station, it will be convenient for people to get around and also to enjoy the green scenery. There are a few HDB flats within walking distance from the station. The cartoon MRT is my imagination on what will happen when the train comes to life.”

Ubi Station

“In my artwork, it shows how the new Downtown Line will bring commuters convenience in their daily lives. I was inspired by the neighbourhood itself, which comprises industrial estates, residential estates and two schools. This is represented in my artwork by the construction worker, the child and the school girl. I made the colour of the train brown, the colour of tapioca, which is what "ubi" means in Malay.”
